K&F Concept Camera Neck Strap

The K&F Concept Camera Neck Strap is designed to meet the professional requirements of photographers. Its modular construction allows adaptation as a shoulder strap, neck strap, or cross-body strap, catering to various fieldwork styles. The reinforced buckle ensures structural integrity, protecting photographic equipment from unforeseen drops and potential damage.

Efficiency and Flexibility in Action

The use of a quick connect and disconnect mechanism for the strap from the camera is crucial for efficient time management and work in dynamic conditions. As a result, you can switch rapidly between stabilized and manual shooting modes, minimizing the risk of equipment damage and increasing flexibility.

Durable Materials

The strap's construction, inspired by technology used in the production of automotive seat belts, guarantees high material durability and longevity. The ergonomic design and the ability to adjust the length from 100 cm to 160 cm allow for customization to individual needs, providing support and comfort during extended use. The maximum load capacity of approximately 36 kg attests to the construction's solidity.

Usage Monitoring System for Safety Assurance

The strap utilizes an innovative warning system with a color code, which serves to monitor the degree of wear and material integrity. This allows you to continuously assess the product's technical condition to ensure equipment safety in extreme conditions.
