Designed for use with printers, fax machines and photocopiers, the Vention cable provides stable transmission without delay. It is distinguished by its robust construction, which makes it so efficient! The ergonomic shape makes the ends of the cable resistant to bending, and the nickel-plated connectors will easily endure many cycles of plugging and unplugging.

High quality workmanship

High-quality materials were used to make the cable, which is why it is so durable and reliable! The copper core ensures high conductivity, and the double shielding prevents interference, so you'll quickly forget about connection problems on the cable.
