Cable USB-C to Lightning Mcdodo CA-7280, 1.2m (white)

McDodo CA-7290 USB-C Lightning cable, 1.2m (white)

You may spend time waiting for your devices to charge, but why should you? Designed for fast charging, the McDodo cable supports a current of 3A, reducing power time. What's more, it supports PD protocol, which means it will successfully handle Apple-branded devices, and it will take you only 30 minutes to charge your iPhone X to 50%. The cable is distinguished by its robust design, and uses a smart chip to protect the batteries of your devices. What's more, it allows data transmission at 480 Mbps. USB-A to USB-C connectors guarantee wide compatibility with many devices.

Security is key

The McDodo cable uses the action of a smart chip, so it recognizes the type of connected devices. Such a solution allows it to adjust the charging current and provide your equipment with full protection against overcharging, overheating, or short circuit. What's more, McDodo provides updates to the latest iOS versions, so you don't have to worry about compatibility.

Robust design

CA-7290 is a cable whose thickened core design ensures stable transmission and high conductivity. That's not all! Its ends are extremely flexible, making them extremely resistant to bending - forget about damage near the connectors. McDodo will not let you down! Noteworthy is the TPE sheath - it is skin-friendly and provides protection against pulling, so the cable will serve you for a really long time!

Transfer files at an express pace

Now you only need a few moments to transfer files between devices. The cable allows transmission at 480 Mbps, which means that it will literally take you a moment to transfer a large movie or a folder of photos! Don't waste your time waiting!
