USB-C to USB-C Mcdodo CA-2840 Cable, PD 100W, 1.8m (Black)
Ensure fast and safe charging for your devices with the Mcdodo cable. The product stands out with a solid construction, wide compatibility, and modern design. It supports quick charging protocols and delivers a power supply at the level of 100W. Upon reaching full charge, it automatically turns off power supply to prevent battery wear. Built-in LED lights will provide you with clear information about the charging status.

Intelligent Charging
With the help of the McDodo cable, you can replenish your phone or tablet's energy reserves in a short time. You don't have to worry about the safety of your devices - the authorized MAPO technology protects the devices and automatically turns off the power when full charge is achieved. This way, the batteries do not wear out and maintain good condition for longer.

LED Indicators
Now you can know exactly what the charging status of your devices is. The transparent housing reveals two color LED lights, which will provide you with the most important information. Orange color indicates quick charging mode, blue informs about active power supply, and alternating activation of the LEDs means automatic termination of charging.

Safety First
Your devices are safe thanks to the application of a dual-core intelligent chip. The product supports quick charging protocols and provides power supply at the level of even 100W, while the process itself is fully controlled, which means that the charged devices are not at risk of overcharging or overheating.

Solid Construction
A carefully thought-out design makes the Mcdodo CA-3151 cable a long-term purchase. A reinforced copper core with high conductivity allows for faster charging, and thanks to the solid ends, the cable stands out with extraordinary durability and resistance to bending and damage. What's more, the double braid provides additional protection against damage.

Modern Design
Apart from being incredibly practical, the cable also impresses with its modern look. The transparent design allows insight into the internal components, giving it a cyberpunk character. The cable enables fast charging and lightning-fast data transmission.
